4. A Landlord 'L' resident of Allahabad has a house at Varanasi. He has let out his house to a tenant 'T'. 'T' is a government servant at Lucknow and living with his family at Varanasi. 'L' wants to file a suit against tenant 'T' for the recovery of rent of six months which has been due. K2 CO1 (7)
 - 5) In a case , the provisions of Section 13, Clause (b), (d) and (e), Civil Procedure Code, 1908 were at issue. The wife had, in this case, sued for maintenance against the husband (residing in the United States). The husband, it seems had obtained a decree of divorce in a Mexican Court. The objection of the wife was that the husband was not a bona fide resident of Mexico and had obtained the judgment by misleading the Mexican Court and therefore, the decree of divorce was taken by fraud. Further, the decree was passed without recording any evidence and was not given on merits, and the wife was not heard personally by the Mexican Court. The Wife did not appear or submit to the jurisdiction of the Mexican court and the divorce decree was therefore, invalid for breach of natural justice. Upholding these objections, the High court declared the marriage to be subsisting and held that the wife was entitled to maintenance. Discuss the validity of the decision of court in the light of relevant statutory provisions of Civil Procedure Code, 1908, and case laws, if any. K4 CO3 (7)
